

Suneetha Giridhar
HR Research Analyst

As Human Resources Research Analyst, Suneetha Giridhar interfaces with members of the American Society of Employers and assists members with HR issues by providing sample policies, helping to interpret employment laws and researching data to support human resources metrics. In addition, she hosts roundtables on relevant human resources issues and conducts training classes for the ASE Educational Foundation. She contributes regularly to ASE Update, a weekly electronic newsletter, and ASE Bulletin, a monthly publication for ASE members.

Before joining ASE in 2001, Giridhar interned with the Gale Group, where she was closely involved in major organizational changes. She helped to develop and document processes that provide a learning tool for other HR professionals during similar initiatives.

A native of India, Giridhar earned a master's degree in industrial relations from Wayne State University. She is a member of the Industrial Relations Research Association. Giridhar resides in Farmington Hills with her husband and two sons.
